WE'RE FOR AMERICA & AMERICANS!

Mr. BRYAN is another statesman out of a jaw. If BARNUM were alive he would corral him for use at the pink lemonade stand or the snake charmer's tepee.

NOW that the voting and the shouting are both over, and that all the abuse heaped upon loyal Democrats has come to naught, THE LEDGER is curious to know how Br'er MARSH is going to "square" himself with Messrs. CLEVELAND, CARLISLE, LINDAY and the thousands of others who have so often led his party to victory on true Democratic principles. It will require the best efforts of even an India rubber scoundrel.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experience that Chamberlain's Colds, Cholera and Diarrheas Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occasions it stopped exacerbating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not return over night without our bottle." This undoubtedly saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by J. James Wood, Druggist.

PROBLEM OF SERVANTS.

Difficulties Pointed Out and Means To Overcome Them.

Illustrated American.
If the family has been at a hotel all summer, a return to the town home means an instant search for servants. Until they are procured no step can be taken, either toward righting the house or toward running it.

The supply seems to equal the demand in numbers, if not in ability, and it is largely a matter of luck whether prizes are drawn or not.

There is so much to complain of on this score that housekeepers are often stultified into silence and accept with compunction uncomfortable conditions lest worse pass them place.

As a rule, the complaisant placceuse, who stands as the gate between the advancing armies of employers and employees, calmly announces to the former that wages are higher this year, and there is nothing to do but submit.

This annual rise has exasperated some women into discovering its reason. It lies no further away than the demands of the keeper of the intelligence office, who obtains a higher fee from both Mistress and Maid in proportion to the wages given.

Thus, a servant receiving $16 gives an extra bonus to the office; and an employer engaging a servant at high wages pays the office more for the privilege.

The annual autumnal increase in wages, with no perceptible improvement in the quality of the labor bought, has at last stimulated women to work out their own salvation in the master.

Training schools for servants are becoming common all through the country, and are under the management of philanthropic women glad to indoctrinate and advance a cause of such evident benefit to two large classes of individuals, housekeepers and householders.

On the whole, however, housekeepers are willing to put good things into hands that have been proven competent, and, with the improved training evincing its delightful results in the outcome, will come the readiness on the part of the Mistress to furnish her maid with proper apparel.

One or two carpers suggest that trained service will demand higher wages. Two arguments meet that: one, that we see the rise in rates anyway; and the other, that we can afford to pay more for intelligent service that neither wastes nor destroys.

P. P. P.—President, Protection, Prosperity!

Regular monthly meeting of the Board of Council this evening.

Senator Lindsay voted for Palmer, Buckner, Pryor and Breckinridge.

At Tuesday's election Winfield Buckley was chosen Police Judge of Carlisle, beating Harry Kennedy by 51.

The Salvation Army will inaugurate a six-day campaign November 16th, to continue one week. It is proposed thereby to realize $40,000 for the needs of the Army throughout the United States during the coming winter.

Stephen Terhune stabbed and killed Britton Dillon at Sherburne. Terhune intended to Dillon paying attention to his daughter, and warned him to keep away from her. The warning was unheeded and the killing took place. Both are farmers. Terhune is under arrest.

The William Powell Brass Works of Cincinnati started Wednesday with 375 men on full time. This had been promised in case of the favorable settlement of the question of honest money, and the promise is fulfilled. Heretofore but 25 to 300 men were employed at these works and only a short time. This is a great big straw showing how business is to begin duty from November 3d, 1896

On the Contrary.

GIVE AND TAKE.

Phil Clark Replies to His Old Friend George Adamson.

Mr. George P. Adamson, formerly of this city, is prominently identified with the Enterprise Soap Works, Nashville. George is also a mighty clever fellow, and withal, is a very intense Demopocrat. A few days ago he sent a personal card to Mr. Phil Clark of this city, and here's what he said to Phil:

ENTRANCE SOAP WORKS,
NASHVILLE, TENN., Oct. 20, 1896.
Dear Mr. Phil Clark,
I am sending you a copy of my card for Bryan and Lukens Thomas. What Tennessee will do for McKinley will be a plenty. Regards to all.

Now, Phil, it is known, is a son of the old cod," who has been here long enough to appreciate the boon of a free country and to enjoy the privileges of an American citizen. He is also an earnest Republican, has been one since he learned that Republicanism stood for Good Government and National Honesty, and expects always to be one; so here is what he wrote in reply to Mr. Adamson:

MATTHEWS, KY., Nov. 4th, 1896.

Dear Mr. Adamson,
Enterprise Soap Works, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear George: I have your postal card of 2d of November. You bid me not forget. Well, I did not forget, for I have gone to work to help the old nation to the South but the old mansion was torn down to make way for the hotel the architect carefully removed the decorations from the walls of the original dining room the old fashioned marble floor was taken up, the mantel, sideboards, window frames and doors, the fireplace, the chandeliers, and, in fact, all the finishings and furnishings, which are of black walnut, handsomely carved, were stored away and then reset in what is known as the Aster memorial room, but William, himself never had the curiosity to see it.

Precaution.

Washington Star.

There was a look of intense anxiety on the face of the man who had pushed open the door of the scientist.

"Professor," he said, "you know a great deal about nerves."

"Yes. I am supposed to."

"Well, I wish you would find out for me and let me know as early as possible which are the more sensitive, the optic nerves or the auditory nerves."

"What do you want to know for?"

"Well, you see I am a believer in the theory that absolute perfection is an impossibility. And, at the same time, I think a man has always the right to choose the lesser of two evils."

"What has all this to do with it?"

"Two girls have taken advantage of the fact that it's leap year and proposed to me. One of them paints and the other plays the piano."

THE WALDORF'S OWNER.

A $5,000,000 Investment Which Mr. Astor Has Seen Once.

Chicago Record.

William Waldorf Astor has $5,000,000 invested in the Waldorf Hotel, and has never been under its roof but once, only to visit a friend who happened to be staying there. He drove to the ladies' entrance, walked through the hall about fifty feet to an elevator, got out at the fifth floor, went to Mr. Kissimm's room, remained half an hour or more, rode down the elevator, walked to his carriage without looking to the right hand or the left and drove away.

He has been in New York several times since his hotel was completed, but this is the only time he has ever entered the doors. Whether his indifference is a freak or an affection no one seems to know. The managers of his business, who are old family friends and occupied a similar relation with his father, submitted to him the plans of the architect before construction was begun and they were approved by him, and he, of course, advised as to all that relates to the property. But he never goes there. A friend suggests that his peculiarity may perhaps arise from the fact that his late wife took an active part in planning, and particularly in selecting the decorations of the house, but one would suppose that would increase his interest in it.

A special reason for Mr. Astor to feel an attachment for the Waldorf is found on the first floor, where the dining room of his grandfather is exactly reproduced. When the old mansion was torn down to make way for the hotel the architect carefully removed the decorations from the walls of the original dining room the old fashioned marble floor was taken up, the mantel, sideboards, window frames and doors, the fireplace, the chandeliers, and, in fact, all the finishings and furnishings, which are of black walnut, handsomely carved, were stored away and then reset in what is known as the Aster memorial room, but William, himself never had the curiosity to see it.

NEWSPAPER'S COMPLIMENT.

Appreciated By the Lady and Obtained a Reward.

Baltimore Life.

She was a very dainty and lovely little maiden, gowned in a feigning creation of grass cloth over dark heliotrope silk. At her throat, wrists and belt were broad folds of violet satin ribbon. On her pretty head was an affair in straw, lace, aigrette and a bewildering array of plumes, which she called a hat.

She was stopped by a ragged little newsboy on Charles street, who said pleadingly, "Wontcher buy a paper, lady?"

The little urchin stood and stared at her, and forgot to take the penny she smilingly held out to him.

"What are you looking at, little boy?" she said as she tried to call his attention to the money without touching his dirty little sleeve.

"Nothing—only was jus' thinkin' you is the beautiful maid I ave seen."

She smiled and gave him a flower from the large bunch she carried in her hand. Many a member of the gay set might have sued in vain for this favor she bestowed unasked on this little child of the street. She blushed and hurried away, when she saw that the lad had been noticed by some well known men standing near.

One of them called the boy to him and said:

"I say, little chap, I'll give you fifty cents for that flower."

The little fellow opened his eyes in wonder. He looked at his treasure and thought of the triumph it would be to wear it before his associates and tell them that a "bo' fufl fine lady gave it to him;" then he pictured the delight that the fifty cents would bring. How grandly he would entertain his friends.

"I'll make it a dollar," said the man, bent on trying him.

"You will do nothing of the kind," said his friend. "It is a shame to prove him a dupe. I have a fancy that the kid shall keep his flower. That will be a good story to tell at the club in this degenerate age. Here, boy, take this and clear off."

"Well, you see I am a believer in the theory that absolute perfection is an impossibility. And, at the same time, I think a man has always the right to choose the lesser of two evils."

"What has all this to do with it?"

"Two girls have taken advantage of the fact that it's leap year and proposed to me. One of them paints and the other plays the piano."

The boy looked at it a moment, his head closed tightly over it. Yes, it was real. Then he ran as hard as he could, never even stopping to say "Thank you." He was afraid his fairy godmother, who seemed about today, would desert him, and the gentleman might change his mind.

Not a Precedent.

A well known naval dignitary has a beautiful daughter. A young ensign, with no resources but his salary, fell in love with her, and asked the old gentleman for her hand. The father at once taxed him with the fact that he had only his salary—hardly enough to keep him in white gloves and to burnish his brass fittings.

"Well, Admiral, what you say is true. But when you married you were only a midshipman, with even a smaller salary than mine. How did you get along?"

The old man, who believed he had made the most diplomatic defense. But not so. The crafty old sea dog thumped him:

"I lived on my father-in-law for the first ten years, but I'll be d—d if you are going to do it!"
